

Our Snowdon challenge!

Stephen Piddington
Jenny Grundon

On September 14th we'll be taking on the challenge of climbing the 1085 metres of Snowdon, (Yr Wyddfa), in an event organised by the charity, Animals Asia. If you'd like to make a donation to encourage us to get to the top, details are below.

Animals Asia is a wonderful charity that helps animals that are victims of cruelty and abuse. In particular, it helps bears who are victims of the horribly cruel bear bile trade. We'll spare you the details here; there's plenty of information on the internet, or the Animals Asia website, if you want to know more. Suffice to say that we think the charity deserves our support.

Our effort of 'climbing' (if that's the right word) Snowdon seems meagre compared to the efforts of the charity's workers who campaign tirelessly, and rescue and care for these poor bears and other animals. However, we want at least to do something to earn donations! And whilst it's something that we, literally, took in our stride in our youth, it's probably going to be more of a challenge for a couple of sexagenarian siblings.

Thanks for reading.

Stephen and Jenny

How to donate

If you'd like to donate, the easiest way is via the well-known 'JustGiving' website, where we have set up a page linked to the charity; a scan of the QR code below will take you there. But feel free to donate by whatever means you like!

JustGiving

JustGiving:

www.justgiving.com/team/pids

Animals Asia:

www.animalsasia.org

Give us a call if you'd like to know more

Stephen: 07815 812740

Jenny: 07518 992692